Herts for Learning (HfL) Training and Events: Spring 2022

When I wrote my introduction to the autumn 2021 brochure it was in the hope, if not expectation, that spring 2022 might bring a degree of relief to the challenging circumstances in educational establishments. It is now clear that we face an ongoing period of disruption for schools and settings across the country.

It is imperative that HfL supports schools through these challenging times. Whilst the current era of uncertainty continues, one thing is certain, change brings the opportunity to do things differently. In the spring term there are over 70 on-demand courses that staff can complete at a time of their choosing, meeting the demands of busy workloads and schedules.

HfL's first digital national conference was a huge success. Over 300 delegates experienced a virtual learning environment that was fully interactive and immersive. Customer feedback has been very positive and has enabled the key learnings to be implemented in both our national primary English conference in January: 'That's me!' Ensuring diverse representation across the primary English curriculum and national Early Years conference in March: Child development: A fresh look at the curriculum.

For the spring term, the overall programme now comprises over 250 individual sessions, providing effective and efficient CPD. Of particular note is HfL's annual SEND conference in February: Crafting Curiosity and our annual disadvantaged conference: Striving for Equity. If you missed our live 'Progressing anti-racism step by step' series, you can catch up with the first two sessions, language matters and BAME pupil and parent voice on-demand from January. The next two live sessions are also now available to book: BAME primary curriculum and resources and decolonising the secondary curriculum.

This summary brochure provides an overview of all current training opportunities for next term, further details can be viewed on HfL's CPD Hub: cpd.hertsforlearning.co.uk. Additional events will be added to our programme as we respond to demand and changes in the educational landscape, to receive updates you can sign up to our mailing list.

While not underestimating the ongoing challenges of transitioning our training online, I have every confidence that HfL's considerable experience will continue to support you in achieving the best possible outcome for children. Please read our 'How to prepare for online training' guide on page 3 to ensure you get the best from your experience.

If you require further information on any of our training or additional support with booking, please do not hesitate to contact the Events team via email: training@hertsforlearning.co.uk or by calling on our direct number: 01438 544477. # How to prepare for online training

Herts for Learning (HfL) is offering a range of online events to support schools and settings and is committed to widening accessibility and ensuring the best possible learning outcomes. Here are some tips on taking part successfully – whether you are joining an event from a school, setting, home or elsewhere.

General advice

1. All events will be accessible on a mobile device (smartphone or tablet) – but if you have an option to access them via a laptop or desktop computer then this is preferable as text and images will be more legible and sound quality is likely to be higher, resulting in a better overall experience. You should have access to a power source for your device/computer to ensure you don't lose power during the training.
2. Should you choose to access a live or pre-recorded event via a mobile device for convenience, then in many cases you can access the event via a computer at a later date.
3. If you are using a tablet or smartphone and are in a location with Wi-Fi – for example your home or school – then you should always use the Wi-Fi connection rather than your mobile data connection. Live-streamed events and video-heavy online content uses significant amounts of data. If you are taking part from home then be aware of other demands on your domestic broadband – if you need to direct others to stop using Netflix, Disney+, Xbox or Playstation then give them plenty of notice and possibly something else to do.
4. All HfL events are accessible through a web browser on your device. Where possible, we strongly advise using a modern browser such as Google Chrome, Firefox or Safari. If you don't have access to one of these browsers (e.g. if Microsoft Edge is the only web browser available) and are unable to install a newer browser on your device or computer, then please contact whoever offers your technology support in good time – and ask them to install a modern browser for you.
5. If you want to hear what is being presented in an event, you will need to ensure that your device's audio is working properly. Depending on your environment, you may need headphones or speakers in order to hear clearly. A headset supplied with a smartphone can often be plugged into a tablet or computer – but again, check in good time, rather than just before an event is due to start. Please also choose the environment you are taking part in carefully so you can participate without any unnecessary disturbance.

Platform-specific advice

Your HfL event will generally be accessed via one of the following platforms. Following booking, you will be notified which platform(s) will be used:

The Herts for Learning website

The HfL site provides a range of content, including streaming videos via Vimeo and other services.

Microsoft Teams

Microsoft Teams is used for many smaller events and is accessible via a web browser. If you use Teams in your school or setting and have a desktop program or mobile application installed, then you will be able to use this for any HfL Teams-based events.

Livestorm

The Livestorm webinar application is used for larger HfL events and unlike other webinar platforms it does not require you to install any software to take part. It is easier to take part in a modern web browser – so please see the general advice about web browsers.

Accelevents

The Accelevents platform is used by HfL to deliver larger online events and conferences – typically those with multiple sessions and a programme lasting a whole day, or sometimes over multiple days. Such events have start and end times and sessions are scheduled between these – often a mixture of main stage events accompanied by workshops in smaller groups. Depending on how the event is configured, delegates may be able to select their own workshops. Some events will feature virtual exhibitions, allowing participants to browse exhibitors virtual stands, find out more about what they offer and register interest. Optional networking sessions may also be part of an event, allowing delegates to meet with others who have opted in to take part in this element of the event. Presented sessions will generally be recorded, and typically registered delegates will be able to access any recorded sessions for up to 28 days after the event.

Training format

Online training from Herts for Learning is delivered in different formats and is available to access from different areas within the CPD Hub. Some online training will be delivered as live events – i.e. accessible on a given date at a specific time, some training will be available on demand – i.e. it can be accessed at any time at your convenience and some training will be a blend of both live and on-demand elements.

Live events

Live events are scheduled for one or more dates – where an event is repeated or has multiple sessions – with specific start and finish times. To take part participants will need to attend at the times specified. Such events will often be recorded – often for replay by those who attended the live event, but also for anyone who had booked a place but were subsequently unable to attend live.

Blended learning

Content comprising a blend of live and on-demand elements, for example with an on-demand module 1 followed by a live module 2 or vice versa. In such a course, participants should ensure that they engage with all modules across the course.

On-demand training

Content provided on demand – including recordings of live webinars – allows participants to play, pause and rewind and necessary. Such content is not time-specific, meaning it can be accessed at a time convenient for participants, however it may have an expiry date or only be available for a limited time.

Crafting Curiosity: The Herts for Learning Annual SEND Conference	Thursday 24th February 2022	Online	£149	SEN/21/659/A
Approaching the leadership of SEND with a curious mind-set has never been more crucial for children and young people with SEND than it is now. This year's conference explores this concept further and reflects on how taking a curious approach can help meet the needs of children and young people with SEND. Kim Hall, SHMI East of England Region will deliver the opening keynote, providing a valuable perspective from Ofsted. In addition Dr Amelia Roberts, Deputy Director at UCL Centre for Inclusive Education, will be looking at how SENCOs can approach the leadership of SEND with a curious mind-set. To close the conference Nick Whittaker, School Improvement Partner and Education Consultant, will be delivering a keynote about how to resolve the problem of SENCOs being expected to achieve the impossible.
The Herts for Learning Technology in Schools Showcase	Monday 7th February 2022	Online	£0	COM/22/142/A
The Technology in Schools Showcase is an essential, free collection of live webinars across one week. It focuses on developing a school's EdTech Strategy and maximising the effectiveness of technology, from the classroom to the office. The Showcase will feature case studies, talks about cloud adoption, strategy building and more. There will be keynote sessions from HfL leaders and workshops delivered by HfL partners. The event will feature content that is important to school leaders, business managers, digital leads and teachers.
Striving for Equity: The Herts for Learning Annual Disadvantaged Conference	Thursday 17th March 2022	Online	£79	CON/22/92/A
This half-day digital conference for 2021 will look at how schools can recognise and address the needs of disadvantaged pupils across all phases of education, with a particular focus on how to promote equity within schools. The conference will comprise a number of keynotes, the first of which will be delivered by Sameena Choudry, Founder of Equitable Education and Senior Standards and Effectiveness Officer. In addition there will also be a focus on the importance of vocabulary development to support pupils to develop fluency in their speech, language and communication skills. This priority focus enables pupils to overcome barriers to learning and ensure engagement with the widest breadth of learning opportunities at all phases of education and beyond.

Child development: A fresh look at the curriculum

A child whose fifth birthday falls in the summer of 2021 will have experienced more than a quarter of their life in the shadow of coronavirus. A generation of children are entering school believing the protocols and limitations that characterise our daily lives are not a new normal, but the only normal they have known. What is more, we know the impact of the pandemic has fallen disproportionately on the shoulders of the marginalised and disadvantaged at a time in their lives when their future life chances may be significantly affected.

With the changes to the EYFS framework in September 2021, this timely event is for anyone working in the early years sector interested in child development and creating an engaging and effective curriculum that keeps child development at the core of supporting the learning and development needs of all children, regardless of background or circumstance.

Key note speakers include:

June O'Sullivan MBE,
CEO London Early Years Foundation

Wendy Ratcliffe,
Ofsted HMI focussed on Early Years inspection policy

Greg Bottril,
Educational thinker and author

Phil Minns,
Ofsted HMI and specialist adviser for Early Years and primary education

Penny Tassoni MBE,
Early years author and president of the Professional Association for Childcare and Early Years (PACEY)

Why attend?

- determine the link between child development and creating a bespoke curriculum
- develop greater understanding of common inhibitors to children's development
- deepen awareness of the cognitive and social aspects of play

Wednesday 2nd March 2022

9:00am – 4:00pm online

Cost £99

Approaching the leadership of SEND with a curious mind-set has never been more crucial for children and young people with SEND than it is now. This year's conference explores this concept further and reflects on how taking a curious approach can help meet the needs of children and young people with SEND. Kim Hall, SHMI East of England Region will deliver the opening keynote, providing a valuable perspective from Ofsted. In addition Dr Amelia Roberts, Deputy Director at UCL Centre for Inclusive Education, will be looking at how SENCOs can approach the leadership of SEND with a curious mind-set. To close the conference Nick Whittaker, School Improvement Partner and Education Consultant, will be delivering a keynote about how to resolve the problem of SENCOs being expected to achieve the impossible.

Herts for Learning (HfL) is an award-winning provider of products and services to schools and educational settings within and outside Hertfordshire. We believe that every young person, through access to a great education, should be able to realise their potential, regardless of where they live or their circumstances. We focus on supporting the schools we work with to achieve successful long-term outcomes for their children. HfL is the UK's largest School Company, operates with a not-for-profit ethos and is majority owned by Hertfordshire schools. Since our inception in 2013 we have reinvested nearly £1million in activities that would not otherwise have attracted funding.
